Notes for Charles Hoare:

Charles Hoar, born 1568 in Gloucester, England

It is not known if he was demonstrably related to the Hoar family in Gloucestershire which was entitled to a coat of arms, but his descendant Daniel Hoar of Concord, Massachusetts (1680-1773), has a coat of arms on his tombstone. This is identical with the arms for the Hoar family shown in the Herald's Visitation of Gloucester in 1623. "An eagle double-headed displayed within a border engrained

Living on the south side of Gloucester in 1608. He was described in the August 1608 book of all able-bodied men in the county as a Sadler, about 40 years of age, somewhat short in stature. He was suitable for service with a caliver and was already training as a soldier. The book was prepared by John Smythe of Nibley for Lord Berkeley, Lord Lieutenant of the county

By me Cha: Hoare: further I give unto my sonne John Hoare fortie poundes more wch shall accrewe unto him when all the other are satisfied out of the estate.

About this date many families, who brought much wealth, came to New England. The cause of this emigration would appear to arise from the troublesome times in England. Charles I, became king in 1625. Then came the long Parliament, and the Civil War began late in 1642. Charles I, was condemned and executed in London, 30 January 1649. There is no doubt but that our line at the time of Charles Jr., belonged to the Parliament side and were strong supporters of the Protestant faith, and this line of the Hoar family would probably never have had to be recorded if Joanne and her son John had remained in England.

He married Joanna Hincksman (Henchman), ab 1612 in England, born ab 1600 in Glouchester, England, died Dec 20, 1661 in Braintree, Norfolk, Mass, buried Dec 23, 1661 in Old Quincy

Someone who read my posting on the Edmond Hincksman family of Marshfield and Chelmsford, Mass., pointed out that the marriage of Charles Hoare and his wife Joanna nee Hincksman is now in the extracted IGI:

Saint Swithin, Worcester, co. Worcester

--Charles Hore to Joane ---, 9 July 1609

Although Charles Hoare was later a resident of the city of Gloucester, this marriage places the Hincksmans from Joanna's side of the family firmly in Worcestershire. It is interesting to note a baptism from another church in the same city of Worcester:

Saint Helen, Worcester, co. Worcester

--John Hincksman, son of Walter, bapt. 24 May 1550

Charles Hoare's will mentions his wife's brothers William, Walter, EDWARD, and Thomas Hincksman. Note, however, that it was really EDMUND Hincksman who was connected with the Hoars and Quincys in New England:

<http://books.google.com/books?id=hkwwKWvozDQC&pg=PA289&dq=%22edmund+hincksman>

Remember from my earlier posting on Edmund that there were possible (or probable) links to Martley and Bransford-with-Leigh, two nearby villages in Worcestershire. Checking the IGI I find the following family group from Clifton-on-Teme, Worcestershire, very close to aforesaid Martley and Bransford:

Clifton on Teme, co. Worcester, England

--Katherine and Elizabeth Hincksman, daughters of Walter, bapt. 25 May 1620

--Walter Hincksman married to Joice Bedel, 18 June 1624

--Daniel Hincksman, son of Walter and Joice, bapt. 19 April 1627

--Anne Hincksman, daughter of Walter and Joice, bapt. 21 June 1633

Notes for Margery Hoare:

MARGERY HOARE (daughter of Joanna and Charles Hoare) was married to John Matthews at St. Nicholas Church in Gloucester, December 25, 1633, and had a son Charles who is mentioned in his grandfather Hoare's will. She was a widow, and probably childless, when she came to New England. She married for her second husband Rev. Henry Flynt of Braintree. He is supposed to have been born at Matlock, Derbyshire, England. In politics he was of the party of Sir Henry Vane, and his theological views led him to take, for a time at least, the unpopular side in the Antinomian controversy. The inscription upon his tombstone in Quincy is as follows:-

Here Lyes interred ye Body of ye Rev'd Mr. Henry Flynt, who came to new England in ye Year 1635, was
Ordained ye first Teacher of ye Church of Braintry
1639 and Died April 27th. 1668. He had ye
Character of a Gentleman Remarkable for his Piety, Learning, Wisdom, & Fidelity in his Office

Her daughter Dorothy married Edmond Quincy, May 11, 1678, and thus the Quincy family derives descent from Joanna Hinckman Hoare through both of her daughters, Joanna and Margery. Mrs. Dorothy Flynt Quincy died in 1737. The house in which she lived, built by Colonel Edmond Quincy in 1685, still stands, a characteristic example of domestic colonial architecture. Among the more famous of her numerous descendants are those members of the Holmes, Wendell, Jackson, Lowell and Quincy families whose names are household words in Massachusetts, and also Gen. John Matthews and Margery Hoare had the following children:

- i. CHARLES⁶ MATTHEWS. She died before 1640.
- ii. DOROTHY MATTHEWS. She married EDMOND QUINCY.

Notes for Henry Flynt:

MARGERIE HOARE (daughter of Joanna and Charles Hoare was married to John Matthews at St. Nicholas Church in Gloucester, December 25, 1633, and had a son Charles who is mentioned in his grandfather Hoare's will. She was a widow, and probably childless, when she came to New England. She married for her second husband Rev. Henry Flynt of Braintree. He is supposed to have been born at Matlock, Derbyshire, England. In politics he was of the party of Sir Henry Vane, and his theological views led him to take, for a time at least, the unpopular side in the Antinomian controversy. The inscription upon his tombstone in Quincy is as follows:-

Here Lyes interred ye Body of ye Rev'd Mr. Henry Flynt,
who came to new England in ye Year 1635, was
Ordained ye first Teacher of ye Church of Braintry
1639 and Died April 27th. 1668. He had ye

Daniel Hoare and Mary Unknown had the following child:

- i. JOHN⁶ HOARE.
10. JOHN⁵ HOARE (Charles⁴, Charles³, Thomas², Richard¹) was born in 1622 in Gloucestershire, England. He died on 02 Apr 1704 in Concord, Middlesex, Massachusetts, USA. He married ALICE about 1645. She died on 05 Jun 1696 in Concord, Middlesex, Massachusetts, USA.

Notes for John Hoare:

Listed as John Hore in List of those Able to Bear Arms in the Colony of New Plymouth in 1643

John Hoar son of Charles son of Charles born 1622 in Gloucester, England, died Apr 02, 1704 in Mass.

"John Hoare, the first in our line in this country, first settled in Scituata, Mass., in 1643, and bore arms the same year. He was a lawyer, and noted "for his bold, independent mind and action." He had a farm on the west of little Masquashart Pond. While here he appears to have been engaged in the business of the town, drafting deeds, bonds, &c..Lived in Scituate Mass 1643-1655. He settled in about 1660 in Concord Mass. He continued the practice of the law, except at one time he was prohibited from practicing, except his own cases, for not attending church, and speaking slightly of one of the ministers.

"John, son of Charles and Joanna, b. about 1622, settled at Scituate; atba. 1643; Juryman, 1646; prop. frm. 5 June, 1651. Lawyer, farmer, propr. Sold land in 1659, and rem. to Concord. Remonstrated to the Court about 1665, that he could not obtain justice for his bro.'s interests which he was representing; and was disbarred temporarily from pleading any case except his own. He rendered ever memorable service in protection of the praying Indians, and in obtaining the deliverance of captives held by hostile Indians in 1675, in consideration of which he recd. a grant of land in 1682.

John hoare's wife Alice d. June 5, 1696."

In November 1675 when food and fuel failed, one of her distant relatives, a Rev. John Eliott, "caused the removal of 58" Christian Indians from Nashoba, New Hampshire to be removed to Concord. No one could be prevailed upon to "take charge of them" until my 8th Great Grandfather consented to do so. He provided quarters in his own home and own home and offices and began building a workshop and palisade in which they could work by day and be protected by night. Against the large protest of my relative John, a Colony Captain Mosely broke into John's premises robbed the Indians of most of their personal possessions and under military escort moved the Indians to Deer Island. While the colonial governor "was not well pleased by Mosely's contemptuous assumption of their powers did not bring any action against the Captain or recompenses Joan Hoar for his considerable losses. 1899 NEHGR 190-195

He took great interest in the welfare of the Indians, and built a house on his place for the Christian Indians. They at the time of King Philip's war were under his care by order of the general court. "Capt. Samuel Mosely with 103 men took these Christian Indians (the Nashobahs) away from Mr. Hoare's place, insulted Mr. Hoare and plundered the poor, helpless Indians of all they had, and sent them, 58 in number, (12 only able-bodied men) to Boston under guard of some 20 rough and brutal soldiers. Afterwards they were sent to Deer Island.

On "Feb. 10, 1676, Mrs. Mary Rowlandson and child, both wounded, wife of the minister at Lancaster, Mass., were taken prisoners at that place. Efforts were made to secure her release, but without success, until Mr. Hoare by the desire of her husband made the attempt. Under date of April 28, 1676, he left Lancaster with two guides, Nepphonet and Peter Tatatiquinea and met the hostile Indians at Wachusett Lake (now in Princeton, Mass.) May 2, 1676. He took £20 and some goods and secured her release, although King Philip refused his consent. They returned to Lancaster and she went to Boston May 7th. It is said no other person in the colony could have secured her release."

John Hoar, at the request of the colonial authorities, followed the Indian band far into the wilderness, and after great hardship and the exercise of great ingenuity, recovered by ransom Mrs. Rowlandson, a lady captive from Lancaster. Her account of her ransom is published. The granite ledge known as Redemption Rock is the site of the famous release from captivity of Mary White Rowlandson. On its perpendicular face is inscribed: "Upon this rock May 2nd 1676 was made the agreement for the ransom of Mrs. Mary Rowlandson of Lancaster between the Indians and John Hoar of Concord. King Philip was with the Indians but refused his consent." Mary White

Generation 5 (con't)

Rowlandson (1637-1711) told her own story in "The Narrative of the Captivity and Restoration of Mrs. Mary Rowlandson," which first appeared in public in 1679, three years after her capture and release. It would become a 17th-century bestseller on both sides of the Atlantic with 15 editions published before 1800. According to Neal Salisbury, who re-published Mary's narrative in 1997 as "The Sovereignty and Goodness of God," in 1653, Lancaster was a frontier town in the "wild, wild west" of Massachusetts. The Rock southeast of Wachusett Lake was a point of contact between two civilizations. Many of New England's Native American tribes, angered by the spread of colonial settlements, the conversion of forests into farmland, and perceived injustices at the hands of colonists, joined the Wampanoag sachem Metacom (called Philip by the English) in an attempt to drive the colonists from their new homelands, in the process destroying hunting grounds, winter camps, and settlements. Mary White Rowlandson's narrative begins on February 10, 1676, when 400 Nipmucs, Narragansetts, and Wampanoags attacked Lancaster "about sun-rising." Mary, her three children, and twenty other captives were taken into "the vast and desolate wilderness, I knew not whither." After many "removes" (shifts of locations), they ultimately rendezvoused with King Philip near the present day New Hampshire-Vermont border north of Northfield, MA. Her bible was a source of comfort throughout, and her sewing skills, quickly discovered, placed her in good favor; for a shilling, she was asked to make a shirt for King Philip. Mary and her captors returned by late April 1676. John Hoar of Concord, who had instructed and protected a group of "praying Indians," went to negotiate her release at the flat-topped outcrop overlooking a meadow where the Native Americans had camped. She writes, "Philip who was in the company came up and took me by the hand and said, 'Two weeks more and you shall be Mistress again.'" Later, a ransom was raised "by some Boston gentlemen." She traveled to Boston with John Hoar to be reunited with her husband, son, and eldest daughter (the youngest had died from wounds eight days after the raid). This historic site was acquired in 1889 by Senator George F. Hoar, one of the founders and first president of The Trustees. It was donated to The Trustees in 1952 by the Senator's descendants, John Hoar and John Hoar, Jr.

To the Hono'rd Generall Court Now Assembled
In Boston May 24th, 1682.

The Humble Petition of John Hoare -

Humbly Sheweth that whereas in the year 1665 yo'r Poor Petitioner was comitted to Prison forced to find suretyies for his good behavior and also fynyed fivety pound for doing such things as I humbly conceived were but my duty and also prohibited from pleading any bodies cause but my owne; Now yo'r poor Petitioner hath a long time layne under the smart of these sufferings and hath often moved for a release but such hath bene the unhappyness of yo'r Poor Suppliant that he hath not yet obtained such a good day the want whereof hath bene greatly prejudiciall to my Brother Mr. Daniel Hoare his Estate and so my owne and also unto my name and famyly. The perticulars in my petition then exhibited to the Honor'd Generall Court wear such as my Brother Mr. Henery Flint of Brantrey & Mr. Edmond Browne of Sudbury did judge would not give any offence. And in that hope I did present it.

I Humbly now present to this Hon'rd Court that in the time of the warr I tooke the charge of about sixty Indians belonging to Nashoby by the order of Majo'r Willerd, Majo'r Gookin, Mr. Elliot, and the select men of Concord. I built them a fort that cost mee of my own estate forty pounds and went with my teame in Hazard of my life to save and bring home there Corne and also borrowed Rey and hors for them to plant and sow which I was forced to pay for myself. I also made several Journeys to Lancaster and to the Counsell and two Journies to the Indians to redeme Mrs.

Rowlinson and Good wife Kettle with two horses and provisions and gave the sagamores considerably of my owne estate above whatever I received of the Countrey and by the favor of god obtained of them that they would fight noe more but in ther owne defence; Seth Perry also had several things of mee to give the Indians that hee might escape with his life.

My sonn Daniel Hoare also was Indicted for his life yet by divine providence was spared, yet was sentence to pay five pounds to the Indians and five pounds to the Countrey tho' as I humbly Conceive he had not broken any Law.

My Humble Supplication on all accounts to this Hon'rd Court is that I might be sett att Liberty from my sentence and may enjoy the liberty of an English man, and alsto that the Cor't would pleas to remitt my son Daniel's sentence. And if they please to grant me some small parcel of Land to comfort my wife with respect unto all her suffereings by my disbursements fro the Countrey as above recited.

And yo'r Petitioner shall give thanks to the Lord and you

And shall ever Pray &c

JOHN HOARE.--"

He was released from his bonds and restraint from pleading in the courts. Furthermore, the magistrates recommended "that considering his publike service & Costs in securing the Nashoby Indians at his house in Concord by order of this Court's Committee for several months in time of said warr, and for his adventuring his life to goe up to the Indians in the time of the warr the successe whereof was the Redeeming of some Captives particulary Mrs. Rowlandson", some 200 acres of land would be granted his family. But the deputies in the General Court disagreed and answered:

" In ans'r to the Petition of John Hoare, and on further consideration thereof the Court judge meet for his service donne for the publick etc. to grant to the wife and children of the said John Hoare two hundred acres of land in any common lands from former grants, and not hindering a plantation."

(Mass. Records, v. V, p. 359)

Samuel Sewall noted in his diary for 8 Nov. 1690, "Jn'o Hoar comes into the Lobby and saies he comes from the Lord, by the Lord, to speak for the Lord: Complains that Sins as bad as Sodom's found here."

John did not leave a will and his probate shows that his son Daniel had been taking care of John and Alice since 1683. (Middlesex Probate, #11589).

He married Alice Lisle, born ab 1628, (daughter of Sir John Lord Lisle and Lady Alicia _____.) died June 05, 1696 in Concord, Mass. Alice: She was the daughter of Sir John Lord Lisle, President of the High Court of Justice, Lord commissioner of the great seal, who drew the indictment and death sentence of King Charles1, He was murdered in Lusanne, Switzerland Aug 11, 1664. Alice's mother Alice Beckonshaw Lisle was beheaded by brutal judgment of Jeffries in 1685. The Story of her arrest on a charge of treason for sheltering rebels her condemnation to be burned alive and her execution by beheading, with all the cruel, gastly, details, forms a disgraceful page in English History. Heres the last end of mortal story.

Generation 6 (con't)

He's Dead.

Lieut. Daniel Hoar had seven children: 1. John, b. Jan. 6, 1707; m. (1st) Esther Pierce of Lexington, June 13, 1734; m. (2nd) Aug. 21, 1740, Elizabeth Coolidge, daughter of Capt. Joseph, b. Jan. 5, 1720. By the first wife he had two, by the second nine children. He died in Lincoln, May 16, 1786, and his widow d. March 10, 1791. John Hoar was a resident of Lexington, Watertown and Lincoln, the changes not being wholly due to removals, but partly to alterations in town boundaries. he held various town offices, was assessor and selectman for several years, and one of the founders of the church. During the French and Indian war, July 14, 1748, at Fort Dummer, he was taken prisoner and remained a captive among the Indians for three months. He participated in the fight at Concord Bridge, April 19, 1775, being a member of the company of which his son Samuel was a lieutenant. His name leads those of the eight soldiers who made affidavit, April 23, 1775, to their experiences on the day of the fight, the first of the depositions sent to England by a fast sailing vessel from Salem. (See Remembrancer I., 85.) 2. Daniel, m. Nov. 2, 1743, Rebecca Brooks; d. in Westminster, leaving two sons and two daughters. 3. Lucy, m. John Brooks. 4. Timothy, b. 1716; m. Abigail Brooks, Jan. 23, 1752. 5. Jonathan, b. 1719; graduate of Harvard 1740; major 1755; lieut.-colonel 1756, and colonel 1760, serving in the French and Indian war 1744 - 1763; appointed Governor of Newfoundland, etc., but died at 52, in 1771, on his passage from England to the colonies. 6. Elizabeth, m. ----- Whittemore. 7. Mary, m. Zachariah Whittemore.

JONATHAN, d. at the Castle, a soldier, Oct. 26, 1702.

JOSEPH, d. at sea, 1707.

BENJAMIN, wife Esther.

MARY, b. March 14, 1689; d. June 10, 1702.

SAMUEL, b. April 6, 1691.

ISAAC, b. May 18, 1695; m. Anna -----, and lived in Sudbury.

DAVID, b. Nov. 14, 1698.

ELIZABETH, b. Feb. 22, 1701.

DANIEL HOARE came to Massachusetts with the family and became a trader in Boston; at least he so speaks of himself, although he is not found a resident or real-estate owner in the town records. He was licensed Oct. 2, 1650, by order of the Council of State "to export to New England three hundred birding fowling peices and muskets upon giving security that they will not be used to the prejudice of the Commonwealth." (See Calendar of State Papers, 344.) He accumulated considerable property, some of which he held in partnership with Lieut Richard Cooke, whom he calls cousin. This Cooke was very probably from Gloucester, as the name is found in the records of St. Mary de Crypt. John Cooke founded the Crypt Grammar School in 1528. The late Major General George Cooke of Albany, N.Y., came from Gloucester. In 1650, Daniel made his brother John and his nephew John Hull his attorneys to settle with Cooke whom, in 1663, he charges in a letter from Hull, England, with dishonesty in his partnership accounts. The attorneyship as before narrated, was a source of dire misfortune to his brother John. Neither the date of birth or death of Daniel Hoare has been discovered. Savage says he died in London. His wife Mary writes from Hull, England, April 9, 1673, to Mrs. Leonard Hoar asking that she would receive her son, John, into their own family, "which would be a singular testimony of your kindness to my husband (who I know will cheerfully pay my Bro'r; yea more free then to a stranger), to his child, and to her that is Your Loving Sister." (See Mass. Hist. Soc. Coll. Vol. viii. 4 Series.)

Generation 6 (con't)

LEONARD HOAR, designated in his father's will to be the scholar of the family and a teacher in the church, although by his coming to New England he missed the proposed matriculation at Oxford, yet satisfied fully the spirit of the paternal wish. He was graduated at Harvard College in 1650, William Stoughton, chief justice and Lieutenant Governor of Massachusetts, being the most distinguished of his eight classmates. In November, 1653, he returned to England and it is said was there befriended by Sir Matthew Hale, also a native of Gloucester and at that time a judge of the Common Pleas. He was soon presented by Sir Henry Mildmay, one of the regicides, then lord of the manor, with the benefice of Wanstead in Essex. According to Oldmixon, Sir Henry's wife, Anne, was a daughter of Sir Leonard Holiday, Lord Mayor of London, also of Gloucester birth, "and perhaps a Relation as well as a namesake" of the young clergyman. At her death, March 12, 1656, Leonard Hoar preached two sermons, "The Sting of Death" and "Death Unstung," which were printed at Boston in 1680, with a "Dedicatory Epistle to Mrs. Bridget Usher, my ever honored Aunt," by Josiah Flint. He was one of the two thousand victims of the Uniformity Act upon the restoration of Charles II., but remained in England for about ten years after his ejection, and received the degree of M.D. from Cambridge University in 1671. Among his friends in England and correspondents at a later date were the celebrated chemist Robert Boyle and Master Samuel Hartlib to whom Milton addressed his famous "Tractate of Education." He was probably given his baptismal name in compliment to his wealthy uncle, Leonard Tarne, the Gloucester sheriff. On July 8, 1672, Dr. Hoar with his wife landed in Boston, having been called thither with a view to settlement over the South Church, where he preached as assistant to Rev. Thomas Thacher. He brought a letter from thirteen dissenting ministers of London and vicinity commending him to the magistracy and clergy of New England as a suitable head of the college at Cambridge, the presidency of which was then vacant, and despite one or more formidable rivals he was promptly elected to that office and installed December 10, 1672, the first graduate of the institution so honored. Sewall writes that "Governor Bellingham lay dead in his House and Deputy Governor Leverett was the Chief Civil Magistrate present at the solemnity." Dr. Hoar's scholarship was of a high order, and he entered upon his difficult duties with very flattering prospects; but trouble soon began and his hopes of usefulness were speedily destroyed. According to Cotton Mather, then an undergraduate, the students "set themselves to Travestie whatever he did and said, and aggravate everything in his Behavior disagreeable to them, with a design to make him Odious." He also adds that the insubordinate were countenanced in their doings by certain persons who "made a Figure in the Neighborhood," doubtless meaning some of the leading overseers. Judge Sewall writes Oct. 16, 1674, "that the causes of the lownes of the Colledge were external as well as internal." Thomas Hutchinson says "the students were too much indulged in their prejudices against him." In Sewall's Diary, June 15, 1674, is an account of the flogging of an undergraduate before the assembled students in the Library, President Hoar prefacing and closing the exercises with prayer. But this was not a very unusual discipline in those days and Dr. Hoar is not charged with undue severity. Very probably a potent factor in the troubles was the bitter dissension then waged between the Old Church and the New Church. The late Dr. J. Hammond Trumbull attributed Dr. Hoar's ill-success to the fact that soon after his coming to Boston he connected himself with the Third Church, then newly gathered by seceders from the First Church who were synodists or advocates of the half-way covenant; thereby bringing himself into marked opposition with the governor and many among the most influential of the clergy, the magistrates and the overseers of the college. The students having all deserted the college, "except three whose friends lived in Cambridge," Dr. Hoar was compelled to resign the presidency, which he did March 15, 1675, and as Cotton Mather writes (Magnalia, 11, 14) "the Hard and Ill usage met withal made so deep an Impression upon his Mind that his Grief threw him into a Consumption whereof he dyed November 28, 1675 in Boston." Increase Mather in his Diary records: "Nov. 28, Dr. Hoar died, having been brought into a consumption by the grief he sustained through affliction when President of the college. A solemn stroke! It will occasion (in probability) this country to be ill thought of in England, that such a man should have his heart broken among his friends in New England." In his will, dated October 25, 1675, Dr. Hoar makes these bequests: My just debts and funeral expenses being first paid I doe give and bequeath unto my daughter Bridget Hoar two hundred pounds in New England to bee paid her at the age of one and twenty years or at her marriage with her mother's consent . . . To my deare brother Daniell Hoar (whose zeall and perpetuall kindnesses I can never reenumerate) I give those par acknowledged⁸ of my stone signet and my watch. To my deare brother John Hoar I give a black sute, to my deare sister

Generation 6 (con't)

Flint and sister Quinsey I give as much fine black serg as will make each of them a gown. Out of my library I give to my Cozen Josiah Flint, Ravenelli Bibliotheca. to Cous: Noah Newman Aquinas his Sermons. and to them both the use of any Books or Manuscripts of mine in divinity, they giveing a note to returne them againe to my wife at demand. My medcall or physical writings I give to my wife's custody not to give or lend but to preserve till some of my kindred addicting themselves to those studyes shall desire and in her esteeme deserve them. Especially I respect John Hoar or any other of my Bretheren, Sisters sons or grandsons.

The inventory of his estate amounted to 1345£. 13s. 5d; the books being valued at 208£. 12s. 6d. The Noah Newman, called cousin, married Joanna a daughter of Rev. Henry Flynt, 10 mo. 30, 1669, according to Braintree Records. Doctor Hoar's printed writings are few and unimportant, consisting, besides the two sermons before mentioned, of: Index Biblicus, 1668, 1669 and 1672; Letter to Josiah Flint, 1661, printed in Mass. Hist. Soc. Collections VI., 100-108; The first of the Catalogues of Harvard College commonly called Triennial, 1674; A Letter from Cambridge, Dec. 13, 1672, to Mr. Robert Boyle, printed in Boyle's Works V. 142, Edition of 1744. The last proves the breadth of his educational views, and indicates that he had a clearer conception than was usual in his day of the value of the study of natural science. It contains what is probably the earliest recorded suggestion of modern technical education. Leonard Hoar was the first of his family to drop the final e from the name. His tombstone in the Quincy burying ground is singularly like the one which marks the grave of his mother-in-law, Lady Alicia Lisle, in England, showing that the same taste directed its construction.

The inscription upon it is as follows:-

Notes for Agnes Hoar:

Email from Jane Wile of genejane.com July 12 2011: Hi Jim - as I was researching Nancy last night I began to remember going through the same records a number of years ago.....

The Onslow Township book does record the wife of Robert John Nelson as being Mary Hoar and that they married January 9 1831 and also the marriage record of her son Samuel records his mothers first name as Mary. These are both believed to be transcription errors by myself and others who have researched this couple.

The Onslow Township book that exists today is a typed transcription prepared in the 1920's - we have found a number of errors in this and there are also pages missing. Same thing for the marriage register we work from - the entries were completed by a clerk from the submitted marriage forms and mistakes were made.

The records that support the wife of Robert John Nelson as being Agnes/Nancy Hoar are: the marriage record of her son John, the death certificate of her daughter Rebecca, cemetery records, newspaper death notice of Nancy and the census records of 1871, 1881 & 1891. I was convinced at this point and did not search for any other evidence beyond these.

"The Cliffords were probably the only Catholics in the area , and there was no church of their denomination within traveling distance. However, Mrs Clifford did not neglect the religious training of her children. Each day she read the Bible with them, a custom which was not usual in Catholic families at that time.. Thus the Christian faith was maintained in the family, but the children were lost to the Catholic Church. The census of 1871 lists their son James as a Baptist, Timothy as a Methodist, and daughter Elizabeth as a Presbyterian! James Clifford was a highly respected member of the community and an Elder in the Baptist Church"

He had been raised a catholic but became a deacon of the baptist church on the Brookside Road. Age 42 on 1881 census

Obituary

bible Hill, June 4

Word has been received by re;relatives here of the sudden passing at Chase, British Columbia , on May 21, of James William Clifford, age 73. Mr Clifford was in his usual health until a month ago, when he entered kamloops Hospital for observation and treatment. He returned home, apparent his old self again, but passed away in his sleep that night.

Mr Clifford was a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. James Clifford of Manganese Mines and later of Brookside, so was a brother of R. Scott Clifford of Brookside and of Mrs W.R. Retson of Ryland Avenue, Bible Hill. He learned the trade of Blacksmith with the late Charles Dickson at Central Onslow, then went West for a short time. Returning, he conducted his own business on the site of the present McLellan Garage, Central Onslow.

Over 30 years ago , he went to British Columbia to make his permanent home and carried on trade there until he retired. His wife, the former Maie McNutt of Brookside, predeceased him a number of years ago,. They had no family.

Funeral services was held from the church, in which for many years he had served as Superintendent of the Sunday School.

possessed of a particularly genial disposition , Mr Clifford made friends everywhere he went.. those in the East were looking forward to renewing that fellowship this summer, as he had made plans to visit Nova Scotia in June, his last visit home having been made in 1920.
